The class was great and so is the book. If you are a law enforcement officer and are interested in drug interdiction, than your library would not be complete without this book. Great techniques to study and master. If you get the chance to attend one of the authors classes, don't pass it up.

Written by seasoned drug enforcement officials, this book provides a "cop's point of view" of domestic drug interdiction. It trains the reader to interview suspected drug couriers, ascertain whether an investigation is warranted, and employ an arsenal of investigative tools, including the drug canine. It also shows how to partner with the business community to combat the drug dilemma. Throughout the book, the authors discuss legal aspects and case law to ensure that the narcotics investigator stays within the law. Its comprehensive presentation of proven investigation methodologies will aid law enforcement officers and investigators in the effort to stop narcotics trade in the United States.

Officers are best prepared when they learn from their peers, and this book by Samuel M. Candelaria and George S. Steffen will have a tremendous effect on how law enforcement officers accomplish their role in fighting drug trafficking and associated crime. Drug enforcement cannot be measured but must be aggressive and a major part of community efforts to maintain public safety. Anything less is not acceptable.- Gilbert G. Gallegos, Chief, Albuquerque Police Department and Former National President of the Fraternal Order of Police, in the Foreword to this book
