An outstanding examination of technological/cultural issues.By Midwest Book ReviewEarth Rising: The Revolution - Toward A Thousand Years Of Peace examines the issue of technology in terms of its impact on human culture and behavior, including such basic concepts as freedom human dignity, sovereign individuality, and self-determination. Nick Begich and James Roderick collaborate to survey the revolution in military affairs and its impact on personal freedom; mind control and the manipulation of human health through the use of drugs, electromagnetic weapons and other means; non-lethal weapons and their use and impact on people; environmental and weather control; new technologies which will virtually eliminate privacy from the world scene; militarization of law enforcement around the country; and updates the HAARP story with additional evidence of the military's plans to manipulate the environment. Highly recommended reading for students of human affairs and the influence of technology on modern life, Earth Rising: The Revolution concludes with solutions that could be initiated and change the implications of these technologies from a negative to a positive impact upon human society. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Earth Rising Awakens You! By Jessica Kaiser Earth Rising is a must-read for anyone concerned about the future of our Mother Earth and her children, who we have the privilege to take care of during our lives. Earth Rising the Revolution Toward a Thousand Years of Peace is about technology and its impact on humanity. This book is about the basis of freedom, human dignity, sovereign individuality, and self-determination. The material will be shocking to all. This is an expose on technological advances which may reshape the destiny of mankind in the next millennium. This book covers a number of separate areas with extensive documentation from governmental, academic, and major media reports, including: *The revolution in military affairs and its impact on freedom. *Mind control and the manipulation of human health through the use of drugs, electromagnetic weapons, and other means. *Non-lethal weapons and their use and impact on people. *Environmental weather control. *New technologies which will virtually eliminate privacy from the world scene. *Militarization of law enforcement around the country. *The HAARP story updated, showing additional evidence of the military's plans to manipulate the environment.

From the Inside Flap This book concludes solutions that could be initiated in the next few years which could change the implications of these technologies from negative to positive. This book carries a message about our humanity and our reach toward higher purpose. We are spirit, energy, atoms, molecules, chemicals, cells, body organs and components and then we are body. These new technologies attack the essence of who we are - they attack the very foundation of our being by wounding the human spirit. The computer problems which have captured the attention of the world as we leave this millennium have made us all question technology and its impact on the world. We will not know the result for a few weeks of what the transition means and its impact on the subject of this book - technology is the subject. In each potential disaster there are even greater possibilities for solutions which redeem the human spirit and will help propel us into the next century. This book is about those solutions. About the Author Begich is the Eldest Son of the Late United States Congressman from Alaska, Nick Begich Sr., and Political Activist Pegge Begich.
