Alexander I. Poltorak, Paul J. Lerner : Essentials of Licensing Intellectual Property before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Essentials of Licensing Intellectual Property:

3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. No nonsense detailsBy Tim HaywardI was looking for something that gave more details of licensing after reading "One Simple Idea." If you are new to the concept of licensing then "One Simple Idea" is very inspirational and also gives a very good idea of the overall process and advantages. This book is more nuts and bolts details, including various sample contracts and what to look out for. Together they are a good combination.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Good supplement to current edition.By Pegasus-

"...well laid out, with goals set out in each chapter." (Management Today, July 2007) "Poltorak and Lerner have produced a highly readable and informative introduction to intellectual property licensing, written with style, grace and occasionally tongue in parenthetical cheek. It should be required reading for those new to the field as well as for others needing a 'Licensing 101' course." Emmett Murtha, President CEO, QED Intellectual Property (USA); Past President of the Licensing Executives Society and former Director of Licensing for IBM "Professionals in manufacturing and in supply chain management have little time or motivation to grapple with legal texts. Yet, they need precise, complete, easy-to-read material that can educate them both quickly and well. Alexander Poltorak and Paul Lerner, in Essentials of Intellectual Property Licensing, understand their audience's needs, and produced a work that is actually fun to read. More to the point, it is easy to read, amazingly concise and clear for a legal text, and encourages the reader to step forth as a partner with legal counsel to tackle issues head-on." Alexis N. Sommers, Ph.D. Professor of Industrial Engineering at University of New Haven President of the Connecticut Association of Purchasing Managers
