This text is designed to introduce students to ethical decision-making in the criminal justice system. Its greatest strengths are its balanced coverage of 1) all three segments of the CJ system-police, courts, and corrections-and 2) both philosophical principles/theories and hands-on criminal justice issues and applications.

"The strengths in [this book] include the current issues associated with correctional professionals. The topics are on target and particularly in the areas within corrections and the communityI particularly appreciate the review of basic philosophy and where some of the values and morals were developed; however, you did not make this a philosophical class, but one of practicality." "Pollock does a good job of making most of the topics clear. This is a great text for introductory courses in ethicsthe overall structure and focus of the text is very good for this size and type." "I selected the Pollock text because I felt that it provides excellent coverage of ethics for each of the components of the criminal justice systemthe police, courts, and corrections, covers ethical perspectives very well, and raises important ethical issues in criminal justice. Pollock also does a careful job updating each new edition. The major reason for choosing this bookis its coverage of the material." -- About the AuthorDr. Joycelyn Pollock has taught criminal justice for the past twenty six years.
