Sebastian Farr, Vanessa Oakley : Eu Communications Law (Palladian Law) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Eu Communications Law (Palladian Law):

New European Directives are set to change the way in which the electronic communications sector operates,creating an entirely new regime affecting providers of electronic communications networks and services. EU Communications Law is the first book to describe in detail the new framework and the transitional arrangements. It explains how the new Directives relate to competition law and the role of regulatory bodies in the provision of services and the management of resources.

About the Author Sebastian Farr is a Barrister specialising in European competition and trade law. He has been at Oftel since 1998 where he is Head of the Legal Profession. Vanessa Oakley, Barrister and Solicitor (New Zealand), Solicitor (England Wales) is currently a Senior Legal Advisor to Oftel.
