From the Back Cover Longman Law Series Editorial Advisory Board Professor I.H. Dennis (University College London) Professor J.A. Usher (University of Edinburgh) Now in its second edition, this wide-ranging textbook provides comprehensive coverage of family law relating to both children and adults in one volume. The author analyses the key principles of the current law in a context that is informed by the theories and realities of contemporary society. The result is a clear, highly relevant and high-value course book for students who develop a fascination with this contentious and dynamic area of law. The author includes topics rarely treated in family law textbooks but of growing significance to family lawyers and society in general: in particular the legal regulation of pregnancy, the elderly, and the different forms of state protection of children. Family Law also provides full coverage of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 and detailed analysis of the impact of the Human Rights Act 1998 on this area of law. Each chapter ends with a summary of the main points covered, providing students with a useful tool for learning and revision. A bibliography is included at the end of the book. Family Law is essential reading for both LLB and LLM options in family law and child law. Postgraduate students following the Diploma in Social Work and associated Masters level qualifications, as well as undergraduate students studying for the BA in Social Work, should also find the book helpful.
