

(Free read ebook) Field Manual: Legal Guide for New York Farmers and Food Entrepreneurs

Field Manual: Legal Guide for New York Farmers and Food Entrepreneurs

Cari B. Rincker Esq.

**Download PDF | ePub | DOC | audiobook | ebooks*

DOWNLOAD

READ ONLINE

#2743904 in Books 2013-09-04PDF # 1 9.00 x .92 x 6.00l, #File Name: 1484965191406 pages | File size: 63.Mb

Cari B. Rincker Esq. : Field Manual: Legal Guide for New York Farmers and Food Entrepreneurs before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Field Manual: Legal Guide for New York Farmers and Food Entrepreneurs:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Nips problems arising on the farm or in the food industry in the bud!!By CustomerAs a mediator and recovering litigator, I found the information in this book useful for my general understanding of agriculture law as applied in the context of mediation. It also is a great neutral reference to help me educate my mediation clients. They can use it as a resource and reality tester in their disagreements. This is an easy to read yet comprehensive resource needed in the agriculture venue to help attorneys and parties understand the issues that affect farm operations and food businesses. Cari has used relevant issues to highlight how attorneys can practically use this book as a guide. This book will help those who own commercial farms or food businesses address issues early and find solutions before problems arise. The food industry has numerous regulations. Understanding the law, as it relates to farm production or food processing, will minimize the cost of making unintended mistakes while on the job. This book not only gives them the tools they will need to comply with the law, it provides them with the information they will need to ask the right questions. I'd recommend this book to anyone operating a farm or food business and their attorney. The Guide covers content on legal issues involving farms and food service that are universal applicability. I'd recommend this resource to anyone working in the food industry. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Indispensable Legal Resource for Practitioners or Food Business Owners By Jason Foscolo As a legal practitioner with an entire shelf of reference books, I've read two types of legal resources over the course of my career. There are authoritative treatises intended to give other attorneys subject matter expertise in a specific legal discipline, and there are resources intended to distill legal principles into a practical format for use by non-attorneys. This book is that rare publication which manages to provide excellent guidance for both groups of readers. For the legal professional, this book is the comprehensive resource you will need to begin to understand the issues that affect farm operations and food businesses. This is the complete issue-spotting resource to which any attorney needs to refer before counseling a client with a business in the food space. For those who own commercial farms or food businesses, this resource has just about everything you'd need to know about how to protect your investment. Like it or not, the food industry is intrusively regulated, and understanding the law as it relates to farm production or food processing is just a cost of doing business. Farmers and food entrepreneurs need to understand how the law affects their business. This book will either give them the tools they need to comply with the law or give them the education they need to ask the right questions of their attorney if and when the need arises. With such a wide range of topics covered in such an accessible manner, I'd recommend this book to the widest range of readers possible. This is an outstanding resource for an attorney operating in a rural area, any attorney who has or who seeks to have clients in the food industry, any nonprofit corporation operated for the benefit of farmland preservation, and anyone with a farming or food business. Though the Guide is marketed to New York farms and food businesses, much of the content covers legal issues of universal applicability. I'd still recommend this resource for anyone working in the legal or food industry outside the state of New York. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Must-have for Environmental-law Types By GradStudent Finally a desk reference for environmental-law types! Perfect for anyone who works with environmental, agricultural, or food-production issues. Confusing regulatory schemes aren't unique to farming; but farming is often unique to the regulators. The more general texts tend to fall into two categories: the ones that omit agricultural issues entirely, and the ones that gloss over them in a footnote. This manual walks you through the issues that the others don't cover, including unique aspects of environmental regs, real-estate, and even the bankruptcy code! Best of all, it's succinct and written in plain English. It also provides statutory and legal citations so that you know right where to look if you have to follow-up on something in depth. Bravo!!

This book aims to be a practical guide for New York farmers and food entrepreneurs. It gives a general overview of a myriad of food and agriculture law issues including business formation, contract law, confidentiality, farm leases, environmental regulation, animal law, land use and zoning, right-to-farm law, intellectual property, farm transportation, employment and labor law, property law, wind energy leases, direct farm marketing, cottage food operations, food labeling, and on-farm poultry slaughter. It's a "must read" for New York farms, agri-business owners, and food entrepreneurs to help them understand the breadth of laws that affect their business.

About the Author Cari Rincker is the principal at Rincker Law, PLLC, a national general practice law firm based in New York concentrating in "Food, Farm Family" law. Cari grew up on a Simmental farm in Shelbyville, Illinois showing cattle through 4-H and FFA and is still involved in her family's beef cattle operation. Cari is currently the Chair of the American Bar Association (ABA) General Practice, Solo Small Firm Divisions Agriculture Law Committee and was elected as the Best Agriculture Lawyer in the 2011, 2012 and 2013 Best of Barns Competition. Pat Dillon is an Iowa farmer, who happens also to be an Iowa lawyer, frequently known to admit that he became a lawyer to support his farming habit. Together with his brothers and his father, Pat operates a farm in northeast Iowa with operations that include corn and soybean production, beef cattle, and timber management. All protests aside, Pat Dillon also loves the law, and he takes genuine pleasure in catching problems early and in finding solutions to the legal issues, large and small, faced by his clients.