

[Free read ebook] Forests in International Law: Is There Really a Need for an International Forest Convention?

Forests in International Law: Is There Really a Need for an International Forest Convention?

Anja Eikermann

*DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF | ePub

DOWNLOAD

+

READ ONLINE

#6455350 in Books 2015-02-06Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 9.21 x .50 x 6.14l, 1.03 #File Name: 3319149490196 pages | File size: 70.Mb

Anja Eikermann : Forests in International Law: Is There Really a Need for an International Forest Convention? before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Forests in International Law: Is There Really a Need for an International Forest Convention?:

This book investigates the potential need for an international convention on forests and establishes a multifunctional concept of forests as a cornerstone for international forest regulation. Accordingly, it examines a variety of international instruments pertaining directly or indirectly to forests and explores their entangled, fragmented nature. While contending that the lack of consistency in international law impedes the development of a stand-alone international forest convention, at the same time it argues that the lessons learned from fragmentation as well as from the history of forest discourse on the international level open up new options for the regulation of forests in international law, based on (new) concepts of coordination and cooperation.

From the Back Cover This book investigates the potential need for an international convention on forests and establishes a multifunctional concept of forests as a cornerstone for international forest regulation. Accordingly, it examines a variety of international instruments pertaining directly or indirectly to forests and explores their entangled, fragmented nature. While contending that the lack of consistency in international law impedes the development of a stand-alone international forest convention, at the same time it argues that the lessons learned from fragmentation as well as from the history of forest discourse on the international level open up new options for the regulation of forests in international law, based on (new) concepts of coordination and cooperation.