judgment, and a court room that desperately wants to convict. 10 of 13 people found the following review helpful. Lynne got this right !!By Marilyn CarterI am from Cary NC and followed the trial daily in 2011. I was quite ashamed over the travesty that happened in the Brad Cooper Trial. May 5th 2011, opened my eyes forever and broke my faith in the Criminal Justice System. Lynne's meticulous investigation and documentation is what has made this book an easy read for all. You will see by reading her book, the whole facade was perpetuated by the hearsay and bias that was allowed in the courtroom during the trial. Everyone, no matter who they are, deserves a fair and just defense, which is just what Kurtz and Trenkle tried to do. Sticking to the facts, Lynne has definitely hit the nail on the head with this step by step, easy to read format. The effort and time she put into getting this right is amazing. My hope is after all this effort, that Bella and Katie will one day be able to read this book and have some connection with their dad when he is released. Kudos to you again, Lynne !!19 of 19 people found the following review helpful. Lynne Blanchard did a really good job laying out the details of this caseBy Ivon H. LewisLynne Blanchard did a really good job laying out the details of this case, I was shocked back in 2011 when I watched the trial, and I still can't believe all the lies and false evidence the police, FBI, the prosecutors and the judge got away with. The whole case was based on neighborhood gossip, at least one witness was so visibly nervous on the witness stand, that he should have become a suspect right then and there. Officials should be in jail over what they have done to Brad Cooper and his family, but they are all still around, and so is the real killer of Nancy Cooper. I do NOT recommend going jogging in Cary, NC. I am glad the author took on the task of writing this book, and exposing the truth, while it was obvious during the trial that Brad was being railroaded, after reading this book I realize, it was even worse than I thought. I do hope Lynne will write a book about the Jason Young case, as it went very similar to Brad's, given the gas mileage of his car, and the distances involved, there was no way he could have done this, or would have stopped at the gas station someone said they saw him.

Nancy Cooper left for a run the morning of July 12, 2008 . . . and never returned. Her husband Brad became worried when she wasn't home by mid-morning. He began calling her friends, but no one had heard from her. While Brad drove around to search for her, Nancy's friend Jessica placed a panicked call to police to report her missing. She expressed fear that Brad may have harmed Nancy. Her hysterics continued as she loudly yelled I know he did it! to all the neighbors who had gathered on the Coopers lawn upon the arrival of police. Sadly, Nancy's body was discovered in an unfinished subdivision two days later. She was wearing nothing but a sports bra and appeared to have been strangled. Police bought Jessica's accusations and immediate tunnel vision took hold, placing all of the investigative focus on Brad. Would evidence confirm their suspicions? Would they investigate Jessica's apparent foreknowledge of Nancy's death? How far would police go to prove they were right? Did they frame Brad Cooper for murder, turning a blind eye to alternate suspects?
